PALM, Nov. 9.—The new government of Premier Andre Tardieu may ask for a postponement of the five-power naval conference scheduled to begin in London on January 20, International News Service learned exclusively today from an authoritative, official source.

The new cabinet, it was revealed, fears that it will not have sufficient time to prepare sufficiently for a conference of such importance before the middle of January.

The interchanges on the subject of armaments between the various governments, it was pointed out, have indicated the vast extent of preparations necessary for participation in such a conference.

These preliminaries, it was stated, would be doubly lengthy from the French standpoint because of difficulties the government would be certain to encounter in attempting to dovetail the ideals established by the United States and Great Britain with France's pledges to the League of Nations.

There is also a domestic political friction to be reckoned with. A definite attitude on the subject of disarmament taken by the new government might endanger the majority it received in the votes of confidence taken this morning.

This probably explains why neither M. Tardieu nor M. Briand mentioned the disarmament problem in their brilliant speeches in the Chamber of Deputies before the vote of confidence was taken.

PLANE TALK

By HARRY A. SUTTON
Of the Technical Staff,
The Aviation Corporation (Written Expressly for International News Service)

10. Applied Aviation

In aerial navigation, wind receives much of the flier's attention. It impedes or accelerates his progress and when it blows across his course, it causes the machine to drift off the true direction of flight. To determine the extent of this drift and so to steer as to offset is a primary aviation problem.

For cross-country flight, an air map is necessary. On it, highways and railroads, cities and towns, lakes and rivers and other easily distinguishable landmarks are plainly indicated. Surface elevations, point-to-point mileages and compass bearings are frequently marked. A study of the map will provide the pilot with very accurate foreknowledge of the topography over which he is to fly.

Knowing his approximate air speed and wind velocity, he may compute beforehand the time required to fly from landmark to landmark as mileage by the map. A very close check on his ground speed will be afforded in flight by these intervals. His drift may be calculated and corrected by the distance he is off his course after any given period of elapsed time.

For airport flying, a map is unnecessary but the pilot should be altogether familiar with the vicinity, particularly with prevailing winds, emergency landing places and obstacles.

(Tomorrow's article of Plane Talk will be advice on Preparing to Take Off).

HOPEWELL SUCCUMBS TO B. H. S. ELEVEN

Game at New Jersey Town
Ends in Score of 21 to 0

GOOD WORK BY ALL

Bristol High School football team played a great game and won a great victory over Hopewell High yesterday. A large crowd, mostly students, witnessed the game, which ended in the final score of 21-0 in Bristol's favor.

Bristol almost always had possession of the ball and allowed Hopewell only one first down. Two forward passes were completed by Bristol. Hopewell was more successful in the aerial attack, but the gains were too small to annoy Bristol any.

On the kick off Dougherty carried the ball behind a perfect screen formed in front of him. He could have made a touchdown as all of the Hopewell men were behind him, but he couldn't get started. In the next few plays Reds and Jake gained much yardage by plunging the line and running off tackle and around the ends.

Then Hopewell received the ball and tried to buck the line, but Bristol seemed too strong for them. Hopewell team kicked to Bristol's forty-yard line, which ended the first quarter.

In the next period Bristol tried its new touchdown play with Pico carrying the ball for a 33-yard gain. Jake finished the work by making a touchdown in the next play. Lafferty scored the extra point. During this time Smoyer was a notable figure on the field, showing his flaming fighting spirit on the grid iron field. The first half ended with no other spectacular play.

Bristol opened the next half with Reds and Jake again hitting the line hard for several first downs. A forward pass with Tulio receiving the ball gained another first down for Bristol. Then Reds made a 16-yard run and right after that a six-yard run until they were nine yards from the goal. The line opened up a hole through which he ran and scored another touchdown. He also added the extra point.

Lafferty punted to Hopewell's 15-yard line. Then Hopewell fumbled and Bristol again obtained the ball. But the team began to "make mistakes" (as the referee stated), and the referee penalized them for these "mistakes." Yet, in spite of the penalties, Bristol scored another touchdown when Reds again crossed the goal line and also added another extra point.

WORLD WAR DEAD WILL BE REVERENCED UPON ANNIVERSARY OF SIGNING OF THE ARMISTICE; GOVERNOR ASKS FOR PERIOD OF SILENT PRAYER

"Let Us Solemnly Remember The Sacrifice of Those Who Paid The Last Debt of Loyalty to Their Flag" Is One
Message In Proclamation

Men, women and children of Bristol and outlying sections will be among the thousands in Pennsylvania who will reverence the memory of the World War dead on Monday, November 11th, the 11th anniversary of the signing of the Armistice.

The anniversary of the cessation of hostilities will be observed by many who will spend two minutes in silent prayer, and mark the proclamation of Governor John S. Fisher which reads in part:

"The eleventh anniversary of the termination of the World War will be observed on Monday, November 11. It will be the occasion for the citizens of our Commonwealth to join in the national celebration of the victory won by the forces arrayed on the side of free democracies and enlightened civilization.

"Our country entered the conflict only upon the greatest provocation, but our soldiers and sailors acquitted themselves bravely in upholding our national honor and sustaining the highest traditions of our Army and Navy in every noble conflict.

"Let us solemnly remember the sacrifice of those who paid the last debt of loyalty to their flag; let us be grateful for those who were permitted to return to their homes and peaceful callings, and let us make humble acknowledgment to the god of nations who led and shielded them in time of battle.

"I enjoin upon all our people to abstain, in grateful remembrance, from their usual occupations and at the hour of 11 o'clock in the morning to suspend all business and employment for two minutes, when every head may be bowed and every heart may reverently remember the sufferings and sacrifices of our heroic dead, who offered their lives as a sacrifice for country and humanity.

"And let all citizens join in offering thanksgiving and prayer to Almighty God for the blessings of the peace which is the price of their devotion."

The day will be marked locally by a special Armistice Day program presented by the Women's Christian Temperance Union in the Travel Club home on Monday evening. To this program the public is welcomed. Ministers in the churches of Bristol and nearby towns will use thoughts upon the day as the basis for their sermon themes.

Tomorrow at the Bucks County Country Club, Langhorne, Jesse W. Soby Post, No. 148, American Legion, will conduct an Armistice service at 2.30 p. m. The Girl Scouts and Boy Scouts of the towns in that vicinity will participate in the service, marching from the community house to the country club. Music will be furnished by the Morrisville Drum and Bugle Corps. A speaker of note will be present. The Soby Post auxiliary will be host to approximately 100 at the annual Armistice dinner in the Langhorne Memorial House this evening at seven o'clock. Speakers of prominence, high in legion and auxiliary affairs, will be present.

Members of the American Legion, Auxiliary of Robert W. Bracken Post, No. 382, of Bristol, are today parading at Burlington; while on Monday the group will be in the line of march at the Armistice Day parade at Conshohocken.

GARMENTS OF QUALITY SHOWN BY EDGELY GUILD

Third Annual Exhibition of Needlework Branch Well Attended

TWO SPEECHES ENJOYED

Messages regarding the work at the Salvation Army Settlement House and Day Nursery, in Philadelphia, and the Philadelphia Convalescent Home for Children at Langhorne, were brought to members and friends of the Edgely Branch of the Needlework Guild of America at the third annual exhibit of garments of the branch at "Shady-side," Edgely, yesterday.

The porch of "Shady-side," the home of Mrs. Thomas G. Hawkes, was filled with garments, each new and of splendid texture, which will be distributed among many homes and hospitals for unfortunate individuals.

The address relative to the work at the Salvation Army Settlement House was made by Miss Jennie Ward, one of the workers at the house. "We are able to supply many needs because of your work and generosity of your branch and other branches of the Needlework Guild," said Miss Ward.

In speaking of the variety of cases that are brought to light at the Philadelphia establishment, Miss Ward remarked: "It is a sad thing to see an aged person with all members of the family gone and no one to care for them, or see that they have the needed food and clothing. It means much to these people to be helped, and we have many in our city."

The intellectually low type of man and woman, boy and girl, was referred to as being a great problem by Miss Ward. "Some are not as they should be mentally because of lack of opportunity, sometimes lack of proper food and nourishment, and then again there are struggles that we do not realize could possibly be. We must be patient with these folks, and kindly. We have learned that some of the boys and girls who are hardest to manage become very apt students in the lines in which

Members of Party Not Able To Determine Which Gun Went Off

A young Philadelphian, who with a party of friends had come to this section in search of game, was shot through the thigh yesterday afternoon when one of several guns being taken from an automobile went off.

The injured: Frank Rozich, 34, of 2500 Richmond street, Philadelphia.

Rozich was taken by his companions to the Harriman Hospital, where a wound four inches on one side of the thigh where the shot had entered was disclosed, with a three-inch wound on the other side.

Approximately 25 or 30 pieces of shot were removed from about the injury, and it is estimated by the attending physician that 50 or 60 pieces still remain. Stitches were taken to close some portions of the wound, and Rozich remains at the institution for further treatment.

The young man, who has a wife and small children, had left his home yesterday morning with a party of six or eight friends, with the intention of hunting small game in this section. Two cars were used by the group. When they arrived at a point near the borough they proceeded to take their paraphernalia from the automobiles. As they were unloading their material one of the guns went off, shooting Rozich. None of the group was able to determine from which gun the shot had been accidentally fired.

A DAY OF MEMORIES

By Rev. H. L. Zepp

Armistice Sunday is well observed to recall all that was great and noble in the World War. We reverently honor heroes, living and dead, who served their country. November 11th is a day of memories. In remembering the past, let us remember the future. An honorable war record is not a complete discharge of a lifetime's obligations of citizenship. Patriotism demands that we be loyal in our practices; that we obey the laws enacted; that we maintain and support the things which are fundamental to our civilization. One of these things is the Sabbath and another is the Church. When the war was on, Woodrow Wilson said that ministers could best serve the nation "by standing by the churches and maintaining the institutions on which the character of the nation depends." If the Church is so vital, let us urge you to spend Armistice Sunday in the church of your choice.

WATERWAYS AND RAILWAYS

Many have been unable to account for the apparent complacency of railroad managements in the face of the opening of the Ohio and Mississippi river route to all-year navigation. They are puzzled by the absence of all railroad opposition to the federal government's use of public money for the development of a competing transportation system, and read with amazement the news that railroad heads attended the formal opening of the Ohio-Mississippi inland waterway.

The answer to all this is not beyond public perception. Generalizing, it is that the railroads, which once made the nation's canal system obsolete, do not fear the competition of inland waterways.

For 40 years the railroads have been preparing themselves for this new competition. They were not caught napping as when motor trucks and motor buses suddenly robbed them of their short-haul business.

Real competition is not immediately threatening, however. Freight traffic on the Ohio and Mississippi has been increasing gradually as lock after lock and dam after dam went into use, but railroad traffic in both valleys increased during the same period. The river traffic has helped the railroads in developing the commerce of the regions they jointly serve. And when the country is in need of more water transportation there will be an abundance of business for all carriers.

VALUABLE

It might be supposed that with high prices paid for rare editions and old manuscripts, together with the zeal of collectors in exploring out-of-the-way places, no important literary "find" could any longer be hoped for. Yet there recently turned up in the most unexpected of places a little pamphlet worth $10,000.

It was found in a bundle of books and manuscripts tucked away in an old church. They had lain there for more than 150 years unrecognized.

From this incident hunters for rare books will doubtless take fresh courage. There are many old family libraries which have never been catalogued or thoroughly ransacked. In some of them there are books worth thousands of dollars to collectors of rare editions and antiquities, and they remain "undiscovered" for the reason that their owners cannot reconcile the trivial things of yesterday with the treasures of today.

But everyone knows that even without this editorial encouragement, hope springs eternal in the bosom of a genuine collector. The search for literary treasures goes on with all the thrills and excitement of a hunt for pirates' gold.

Another myth has been annihilated. Several of the 10 greatest women selected by Mr. Ludwig for a magazine were mothers-in-law.

A Minneapolis boy learned to play the violin on an abandoned farm. To locate him now, look for an abandoned apartment house.

The electric light is 50 years old but the electric bell is older, some having been out of order longer than that.

SYNOPSIS

Violet, a chorus girl, and her fiancé, Wally, enlist the aid of Jerry, understudy to the star, in getting the consent of Vally's uncle to their marriage. Jerry allows Uncle Steve to mistake her for Violet, and assumes the role of a scheming woman so that he will be happy to let someone else marry Wally. Blake, Steve's lawyer, suggests that they take Jerry out to get acquainted before making a final decision, and Jerry's friend, Mabel, comes along. The gold-digging starts, and is brought to a climax by a party which Steve is to pay for. To shock him still further, Jerry lies about her past, but her mother inadvertently gives her away. Steve leaves in anger.

"You don't know, Jerry. If he really loves you, he'll come back."

"Not Uncle Steve. I tried so hard to shock him and now that I have, I wish it had never happened. Of course, I never expected it to turn out like this, Mother."

"Perhaps it hasn't turned out as badly as you think now. Tomorrow may put an entirely different aspect on the situation. Just go to bed and rest up for your rehearsal."

"I don't care anything about rehearsal any more. I don't care about anything. I'd like to have this whole thing to d. over. I've made such a mess of everything I've ever tackled. I'm just good for nothing."

"There—there, now, Mrs. Lamar tried to comfort her. Jerry became hysterical now because her mother was talking to her just as Uncle Steve had done a few moments before, in almost the very same words that he had uttered when he had tried to quiet her pretended fit of weeping.

"Oh, leave me alone! What if I have been crying?"

When Jerry was too tired to cry any more, she went to bed to spend a restless night. When she fell asleep, she dreamed that Uncle Steve returned to tell her he had forgiven her everything. He took her in his arms, and she rested her head on his shoulder, happier than she had been in her whole life.

Then she awoke to find it had all been a dream, and she cried again. For a long time she lay awake with her recriminations, and then she dozed off again. This time she dreamed that he had gone away on a long trip from which he was never to return, and she was standing at the dock waving to him the last time. All the fears and emotions she had suffered before going to sleep she experienced now in her dreams.

Her mother awakened her from the fit of crying she had succumbed to in her sleep.

"My dear, what is it?"

"Just dreams, mother. I can't stop thinking, even in my sleep."

"If you don't get some rest, I don't see how you expect to do anything at rehearsal."

"It doesn't matter," she replied weakly, closing her eyes again.

In a few moments she heard a front door slam, and through the crack in her door she could see that a light had gone on. It must be Violet. She could not—dared not—face her. She would not get up unless Violet herself came into the room to find out the news. A few minutes passed, and the light went out. It might have been Mabel. Wally was undoubtedly keeping Violet out as long as possible to follow her instructions.

A little later she heard the door again, and knew it was Violet. There was whispering in the next room. Then she saw the door of her room opening softly, and Violet looking through the aperture.

"Asleep?" Violet whispered.

Jerry did not have the heart to dissimulate.

"I'll be out," she answered.

The door closed, and Jerry looked over to see if her mother was asleep. Convinced that she was, she put on her slippers and robe, and tiptoed out. Mabel had already opened the bed and crawled in, but Violet stood there fully dressed, looking at Jerry for a word of encouragement.

"Well?" she asked impatiently.

ST. CECILIA C. C. WILL OPPOSE ST. ANN'S XI

(By T. M. Jono)

The Bristol St. Ann's football eleven will have another opportunity to show its skill to the St. Cecilia Catholic Club eleven tomorrow, when the teams line up on Sullivan's field.

Last week's engagement between the two elevens was postponed because of rain, and because of the intense rivalry between the clubs the management of both elevens decided to settle the supremacy this week.

St. Cecilia beat the "Saints" last year by a 12-6 score, but the "Saints" were greatly handicapped at the time. This year, however, the Bristol eleven is greatly strengthened and has intentions of putting one over on "Jimmy" Walker's Cecilia team.

"Jay" Fine is the only member of the local team who is not sure to play. Fine has been ill for the past week or so and may not be in shape to play. The remainder of the squad is very anxious to get the machine working.

The manager of the Bristol team wishes to announce that it is impossible for the Kent Tigers to leave their home field for a game here, so most likely there will be no meeting of the two teams this season.

Eddington A. A. has not answered the "Saints' last challenge, but reports from that team state that the club does not fear the locals and is carefully considering the Thanksgiving Day attraction offered to them. Game with St. Cecilia begins at 3 p. m.

Garments of Quality Shown by Edgely Guild

we instruct them." Conditions, said the speaker, are changing for the better, but "we will always have the poor with us. Illness comes, and circumstances arise at times which human beings cannot govern. We must help them in any way we can, and instruct them as they should be instructed, in order to make their future a brighter and happier one."

The Edgely branch was thanked for its donations in times past, and the many needs filled by these new garments upon which the women work week after week, were spoken of.

Mrs. Julia R. Hazard, of the Philadelphia Convalescent Home for Children, Langhorne, gave an insight of the splendid work being carried on there, where undernourished and weak and ill tots are placed on the road to health and happiness.

The workers of the Edgely branch, who have this year strived for garments of better quality rather than number, were congratulated on all sides for their success. The display was one of merit, consisting of 1299 garments. Chief among them were: 16 suits for boys; a number of heavy trousers, fashioned of corruoy and other long-wearing materials, dresses of many patterns and materials, baby blankets, towels, wash-rags, sleeping garments, etc.

The three women whose names are on the honor list by virtue of having collected the largest number of garments during the year are: Mrs. Thos. G. Hawkes, 130; Mrs. George Garretson, 125; and Mrs. T. B. Megargee, 112.

The sewing committee, which group meets at the Hawkes home Tuesday of each week to work upon articles of clothing, made 432 of the number.

Bristol M. E. Church

Inspirational indeed were all of the services in the Methodist Episcopal Church last Sunday. Loyalty month got underway with an impressive start. Despite the inclement weather excellent congregations were found at all services. It is anticipated that others will join the ranks of the Loyal this Sunday.

The opening service of this Sabbath Day is at 10:30 a. m. The sermon for this service is centered in the life of Cain, earth's first son. The text found in Jude 1:11 implies an ignominious end. "The Way of Cain" will reveal the chosen path which inevitably leads to a shameful end.

At 2:15 o'clock the Sunday School will meet. Classes for all.

At 6:45 p. m. the Senior Epworth League service will be in charge of James Douglass, theme, "What Is Going on in World Affairs?"

At 7:45 o'clock will be service of song, prayer and praise. The pastor, Rev. George F. Hess, will speak on the subject, "The Belt of the Soul." Special music by the choir.

Activities of the week include:

Tuesday at 7:30 p. m., Boy Scouts, Troop No. 6; Tuesday at 8:00 p. m., choir rehearsal; Wednesday at 7:45 p. m., prayer meeting—Rev. Thomas H. Evans, D. D., district superintendent, will bring the message; Wednesday at 8:15 p. m., the Fourth Quarterly Conference in charge of Dr. Evans, superintendent. All officers of the church urged to be present.

The Bristol Group, Epworth Leagues, will hold a bi-monthly rally at Bensalem Friday evening at 8:15 o'clock, and will be a masque party. All members of the local chapter are urged to be present.

Presbyterian Church of Our Saviour, Lincoln avenue and Wood street, Rev. Andrew G. Solla, pastor, residence, 1506 Wilson avenue: Morning service, 10:45; Sunday School, 2:30 p. m.; evening service at 7:45, topic, "Armistice Day," with preaching entirely in English.

Monday night will be Boy Scout's meeting; Wednesday evening, young people; Thursday evening, brotherhood prayer and sermon, topic, "Spiritual meeting; Friday night, Junior Christ-

Union Church of Edgely

Rev. R. H. Clark, of the Union Church of Edgely, announces service at that edifice for tomorrow as follows:

Song service and special music by children's choir, 7:30. Guest soloists will be present from Philadelphia. The pastor's theme will be: "Has God Gone Out of Style?"

HELP WANTED

We are in need of additional salesmen to sell Buick Marquette automobiles. Any ambitious man of character, who is efficient and who is willing to learn and follow instructions, can qualify.

This company will conduct an evening school for the purpose of thoroughly training such men. You can continue your present position while attending the school in the evening. At the conclusion of this school, those men who have made a good showing will be assured of positions.

We will consider applications from men in rural districts who desire to follow this work part time in their communities.

Applications will also be considered from men with automobile selling experience.

WHEN YOU BUY A ZENITH

You Are Buying A Radio Receiver Whose Value and Price Are Not Going to Be Cut

In fifteen years of merchandising in the radio field Zenith has never yet reduced a price on a current model or resorted to "dumping" on account of lack of sales or overproduction. Zenith buyers therefore are protected against unexpected slashes in price. The value of a Zenith is as standard as that of a jewel.

We Carry Only Those Radio Receivers Made by Companies That Protect the Customer from Depreciated Values

We are proud of the high grade receivers for which we are the agents — we recommend and guarantee every one of them. Not a cut-price instrument among them! All standard price sets — no reductions will be made!
